UK Outlook for Tuesday 8 Jun 2021 to Thursday 17 Jun 2021:
A settled pattern with high pressure dominating will be in place at the beginning of next week, bringing sunny spells and mainly light winds, although the winds could strengthen in the far northwest for a time. Temperature will trend towards the warmer side of the average. There will however be a risk of isolated showers on most days, and perhaps even the odd heavy one with thunder. This weather pattern is expected to continue through much of the period, although a developing northwest/southeast split becomes increasingly likely, with more unsettled conditions possible in northwest of the country and southeastern areas more likely to remain settled. Temperatures are expected to remain warmer than the average for the time of year.
